

say there was real rejoicing. Disembarked at 2:15 p. m., marched 200 yards to a warehouse to await train No. 4 for Camp Jackson, South Carolina. Here the Red Cross ladies served coca-cola and sandwiches, took telegrams and gave out post cards. Entrained at 4:25 p. m., pulled out immediately and arrived at Camp Jackson, South Carolina, 12 o'clock (night). The Company was deloused next day, and on Monday, June 23, 1919, "K" Company was broken up for demobilization and the men of different States being sent to various camps for discharge.

Thus were separated forever the associations of comrades in service who for a year and more had drilled intensely beneath a scorching sun at home and on foreign soil; hiked together over the winding roads of France; bore their task together through thick and thin across No Man's Land, and were now free to seek their future destiny among the changed conditions that greeted them in their homeland.

* * * * *

"K" Company was composed of men from thirty-six States of the Union and two foreign countries, with North Carolina, Alabama and Tennessee in the lead. North Carolina, 44; Alabama, 33; Tennessee, 22; Minnesota, 11; New York, 10; Florida, 10; Arkansas, 8; South Carolina, 5; Illinois, 5; Montana, 4; Mississippi, Kansas, Kentucky, Wisconsin, Texas and Ohio, 3 each; New Jersey, California, Wyoming, Nebraska, Oregon, Oklahoma, Missouri, Idaho, Rhode Island, West Virginia and Michigan, 2 each; District of Columbia, Vermont, Massachusetts, South Dakota, Iowa, New Hampshire, Indiana, Georgia, Pennsylvania, Canada and Sweden, 1 each.